

Board Profile: Curley M. Dossman Jr.

Introduction:

Curley M. Dossman Jr. is a distinguished professional with a remarkable record of leadership and community engagement. Serving as the President of the Georgia-Pacific Foundation since 1994, Curley has played a pivotal role in shaping the foundation's charitable giving program and overseeing community affairs efforts. His extensive background in government affairs and commitment to various non-profit organizations have made him a respected figure in the corporate and philanthropic sectors.

Professional Background:

Curley's tenure as President of the Georgia-Pacific Foundation has spanned nearly three decades, during which he has led the foundation's charitable giving program. This program focuses on four key areas: education, environment, enrichment, and entrepreneurship. Additionally, he is responsible for supervising Georgia-Pacific's community affairs endeavors, which include managing local government affairs at the company's headquarters and coordinating national disaster relief efforts.

Before joining the Georgia-Pacific Foundation, Curley spent a decade as the State Vice President of Government Affairs for AT&T. His extensive experience in government affairs was not limited to Georgia; as a Louisiana native, he held various significant roles there, including Legislative Assistant to U.S. Senator Russell B. Long and Assistant Director of the Louisiana State Planning Office.

Notable Achievements:

Curley's remarkable career has been marked by numerous achievements and recognitions. His leadership in both the corporate and non-profit sectors has earned him a prominent place in the community. His service extends beyond Georgia-Pacific, impacting organizations such as the Atlanta Committee for Progress, Community and Government Affairs Advisory Council, Atlanta Downtown Improvement District, Atlanta Rotary Club, Savannah State University Board of Governors, Metro Atlanta YMCA, High Museum of Art, and Atlanta Beltline Partnership Development Committee.

He also serves as the Immediate Past Chairman of the board of directors for 100 Black Men of America, highlighting his dedication to fostering positive change and empowerment within the African American community.

Education:

Curley's educational journey has provided him with a strong foundation for his career. He earned his undergraduate degree from the prestigious Morehouse College and went on to obtain his law degree from Washington University School of Law in St. Louis, Missouri.

Professional Affiliations:

Curley's commitment to community service and engagement is evident through his involvement in various non-profit organizations. His roles on the boards of organizations such as the Atlanta Committee for Progress, Metro Atlanta YMCA, and 100 Black Men of America showcase his dedication to effecting positive change at both the local and national levels.

Philosophy and Vision:

Curley M. Dossman Jr. believes in the power of corporate philanthropy and community engagement to drive positive societal change. His vision revolves around the principles of education, environmental stewardship, enrichment of communities, and entrepreneurship as catalysts for empowerment and growth. Through his roles and affiliations, he strives to create a better future for underprivileged communities and inspire leadership and innovation.

Summary:

Curley M. Dossman Jr.'s extensive career, leadership in corporate philanthropy, and commitment to community service make him a valuable asset to any board. His dedication to addressing critical issues and fostering positive change reflects his passion for making a lasting impact. Curley's contributions continue to enhance the communities he serves and exemplify the values of leadership and community engagement.
