

Dr. Beverly Jones

Mayor – City of Stone Mountain, Georgia

I believe that true progress begins with inclusion. In a city as historically significant as Stone Mountain – and in communities across the United States – economic growth cannot be sustained without ensuring that all people, regardless of background, have a seat at the table and a voice in the process. My vision is rooted in building bridges, not barriers, and ensuring that diversity is not only celebrated but embedded in every policy and project.

I advocate for targeted investment in small businesses, workforce development, affordable housing, and infrastructure, all while supporting creative entrepreneurship and community-based initiatives. By fostering collaboration between public institutions, private enterprises, and grassroots organizations, I believe Stone Mountain can become a model for sustainable, inclusive economic revitalization. The path forward, in my view, depends on visionary leadership, honest dialogue, and an unwavering commitment to justice and opportunity.
